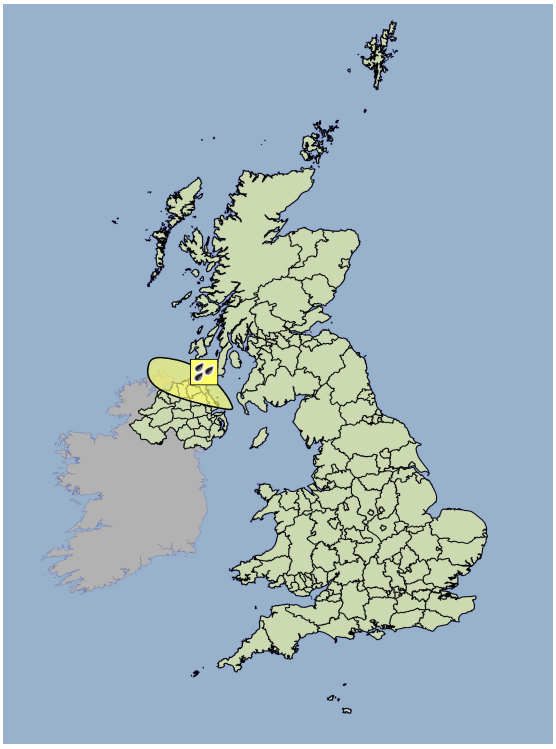
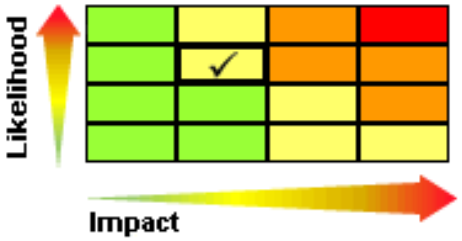
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A small-scale low will anchor itself just north of Northern Ireland for the first half of Saturday, such that the current band of locally heavy rain moves only a little further north, before slipping back southeastwards this afternoon. Some places could receive an additional 20 to 30 mm on top of similar amounts received overnight.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 09:00 on Sat, 15th Jun 2013 until 20:00 on Sat, 15th Jun 2013

Following overnight rainfall, further heavy rain is likely to persist through until early Saturday afternoon in places; even beyond this, scattered heavy showers are possible. The public should be aware of the possibility of surface water issues and minor disruption to travel.
